

Administrative Services Adam Kabasakalian, Director

Adam serves as the Director of Administrative Services and has been with Camden County since 2008. He grew up in a small family business, was trained by a large corporation, and currently serves the citizens of Camden County.

Adam learned first-hand the importance of hard work and perseverance at an early age with jobs including janitor, cook, laborer, and even a limo driver. After graduating from Montclair State University with a degree in Business Administration, he was hired by a fortune-500 company to participate in an 18 month Operations and Systems Management Development program. After completing the program, Adam began working as a System Process Analyst and then as a Project Management Specialist. After five years of employment, Adam made a quality of life decision to move to Kingsland.

He spent the next five years working in the local Real Estate market before joining the County as a Management Analyst. As needs at the County changed, so did his role. After working a year-and-a-half as the Management Analyst, Adam was promoted to Director of Strategic Initiatives (first as interim, then permanently). After being in the role for three-and-a-half years, Strategic Initiatives was reorganized to become Administrative Services in October of 2013. The Department of Administrative Services is responsible for the divisions of Curbside Collection, Customer Service, and Information Technology.

Adam is happily married to his wife of 14 years and they have four young children. They reside in Kingsland, where they attend Hidden Treasures Assembly of God. In their free time, Adam and his family enjoy hiking, biking, and anything in the great outdoors. Adam is scheduled to complete a Masters of Business Administration degree from Brenau University in April, 2015.
